Upon Information and Belief

Another Editorship Concluded

With the appointment of John S. Poyen as executive secretary of the Denver Bar Association, another editorship of DICTA is coming to a close. DICTA has been published now for 20 years as DICTA, its predecessor, the RECORD, of course going back for several years prior to the beginning of DICTA. This decade of publication both started and ends with a Henry at the helm, which may or may not be a good thing, depending upon the viewpoint.

The editors-in-chief of DICTA over the past 20 years have been as follows:

S. Arthur Henry.....	1929-1930
John F. Pierce.....	1930-1931
Louis A. Hellerstein.....	1931-1933
Roy O. Samson.....	1933-1941
Cecil M. Draper.....	1941-1943
George A. Trout.....	1943-1944
Hubert D. Henry.....	1944-1948

As will be seen from this table, the concluding editorship has neither been the shortest nor the longest in the history of the association. For those who have not experienced this pleasure, let us hasten to say that it is a pleasure to edit a bar association magazine and to attempt in some small way to make suggestions to members of the bar. It is in this pleasure that the editors have found their reward, and if all editors-in-chief have experienced the same pleasure that the present editor has, we will confess that these rewards have been adequate for the enormous amount of time and energy which has gone into this work.

From time to time we have attempted to editorialize and to suggest to
