

July 2021

Upon Information and Belief

Dicta Editorial Board

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.du.edu/dlr>

Recommended Citation

Upon Information and Belief, 18 Dicta 199 (1941).

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by the Denver Law Review at Digital Commons @ DU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Denver Law Review by an authorized editor of Digital Commons @ DU. For more information, please contact jennifer.cox@du.edu, dig-commons@du.edu.

Upon Information and Belief

This issue represents the initial attempt of your new Board of Editors. We are eager to please you. It is your magazine and we want to give you what you want. After all, you know, we just work here. But—and here is where you come in—what do you want? Do you want exhaustive articles on current legal subjects and, if so, on what subjects? Or do you want more biographical and historical sketches? Do you feel that Dicta is a proper medium for news notes on the profession and its members? Could you relax and enjoy a funny story or two? These are only a few of the suggestions that have come to us. Others will occur to you. So if you are not getting what you want in your magazine, don't pout. Write and let us know.

And on the same subject, we are reliably informed that a review of the Supreme Court decisions is to be distributed in loose-leaf form every two weeks by the Colorado Bar Association so it will not be necessary for Dicta to carry the same material. And that's bad, too, because the outgoing editors had a review of those decisions all ready to run.

By the way, had you thought about writing an article for us? It might be a good idea. The more material we have, the better magazine we can give you. So if you have something in mind which you think might be of interest to other members of the profession, let us have it. It need not be long. Frequently a shorter article is better. Likewise we would appreciate short notes and amusing incidents involving our members, present or past. If you are undecided as to the value of your contribution, call us. We will be glad to make suggestions and help you in every way.

Our mailing date this month is August 9; next month, September 5. Beginning in October, every attempt will be made to place Dicta on your desk by the first of each month. This means that all copy, including advertisements, must be in the hands of the printer by the 20th of the preceding month. And since we usually read everything we publish, your contributions should reach us not later than the 10th or 12th.

And finally—don't forget to fill in and return your economic survey questionnaire. Do your bit so that the committee can make its report.